Excerpt from An Account of the Aboriginal Inhabitants of the Californian Peninsula: As Given by Jacob Baegert, a German Jesuit Missionary, Who Lived There Seventeen Years During the Second Half of the Last Century Having thus given an abstract of the first part of the book, I cannot conclude these introductory remarks without saying a few words in favor of the Jesuits. Whatever we may think, as Protestants, of the tendencies of that order, we cannot but admit that those of its members who came as missionaries to America deserve great credit for their zeal in propagating a knowledge of, the countries and nations they visited in the New World. To the student of American ethnology particularly, the numerous writings of the Jesuit fathers are of inestimable value, forming, as it were, the very foundations upon which almost all subsequent researches in that interesting field of inquiry are based.
