Createspace, United States, 2012. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****. Aren't you tired of all the talking heads on TV screaming for you to buy! buy! buy! and sell! sell! sell! the same stocks day in and day out? Aren't you tired of all the self-important commentators telling you that it's a trader's market? You should be. They've been screaming the same thing for decades, all to their audience's detriment. It's common sense, really. If your retirement hinges on stock prices going up, you are not investing. You're hoping. You're gambling. You might as well add baseball cards and comic books to your nest egg. Or go to Vegas. At least there the odds are pure and you'll have a good time losing your money. Companies have no more control over their share prices than you do. Some years they are up, some years they are down, but only rarely, if ever, do they reflect the underlying business. If you're relying on capital gains to fund your retirement and there's a stock market crash, that means you can't retire--even if the underlying businesses are as profitable as ever. How crazy is that? There has to be a better way than playing this rigged game. There is: dividends and other income generating investments. Although companies have zero control over their stock prices, they have almost complete control over how much of their earnings they pay their owners. That's what you are when you invest in a business: an owner. And there's no point in owning a business if it doesn't pay you. Study after study, over numerous time periods, shows that buying and holding dividend paying...
