The papers relative to my case, which are in the hands of the Commander-in-Chief, contain so full a recital of the grievances which I have been made to suffer from my Colonel, His Royal Highness the Duke of Cumberland, as to render any repetition on that subject, unnecessary. But I trust it will be remembered, not only that my complaints of those grievances were invariably accompanied with the most earnest entreaties for the fullest investigation of my conduct, but that the most satisfactory and conclusive testimonials of the regular discharge of all my military duties, testimonials establishing my character as an officer and a gentleman on the most solid grounds, ate already before-Sir David Dundas, and actually form a part of my case. Feeling myself grievously wronged by my Colonel, I saw, with satisfaction, that...

Reviews

This book may be really worth a read through, and far better than other. it was actually writtern extremely completely and valuable. I am just very easily will get a satisfaction of looking at a published ebook.
